Thanks to an NSF-funded grant, we will be able to offer a limited number of NSF Scholar Awards to eligible ISBI participants to attend the 2013 ISBI Conference in San Francisco, California. The awards will range from tutorial fee reimbursement to travel support (including registration). The majority of awards will be given to support tutorial registration.

INSTRUCTIONS AND REQUIREMENTS

Instructions:

- Please complete all pages included in this application completely and accurately
- Forms MUST BE completed using Acrobat Reader.
- Save your filled-out form using the Save or Save As... (do not "Print as pdf" as this will prevent automatic parsing of your form).
- The application must be submitted by the student's advisor or supervisor at https://embs.papercept.net/
  (click "Submit a contribution to ISBI 2013" then "Submit" near NSF Travel Grant Application).
- When prompted to upload files, do not upload file in the "Compliant conversion" box (leave that one empty), upload file in the box where it says This attachment is mandatory (see next page for detailed screenshot).
- Only complete forms received before Tuesday April 2 2013 11:59 pm (Pacific Daylight Time) will receive consideration.

Eligibility:

- Only US-based*, full-time, students (undergraduate or graduate, excluding postdocs) are eligible for travel grants (priority will be given to student authors or students presenting a paper).
- Only US-based* students and postdocs are eligible for tutorial fee reimbursement.
- Women and minorities are particularly encouraged to apply.
- Preference will be given to the applicants seeking support for tutorial registration.

*US citizenship or permanent residency is not required, but applicants must be studying or have their primary appointment in a US university/organization.
